Key Takeaways

The price of Swedish armored fiber optic cables varies widely based on specifications, core count, armor type, jacket material, drum length, and order quantity, typically ranging from a few dollars per meter to higher rates for specialized configurations.

Key Pricing Factors

The cost of armored fiber optic cables depends on several technical and logistical factors: Fiber Type and Core Count: Single-mode (OS2) or multi-mode (OM3/OM4) fibers, and the number of cores (e.g., 6-core, 12-core, 144-core) significantly affect price. Armor Structure: Steel tape or wire armor for protection in harsh environments increases cost. Jacket Material: Outdoor-rated, UV-resistant, or fire-retardant jackets add to the price.

Tensile Strength and Installation Type: Direct burial, aerial, or indoor installation requirements influence material and labor costs. Drum Length and Packaging: Longer reels reduce per-meter cost, while custom packaging or pre-terminated cables may increase upfront cost but save installation labor. Quantity and Delivery Location: Bulk orders and local sourcing in Sweden can lower unit prices, while small orders or international shipping increase costs.

Typical Price Ranges

While exact prices fluctuate with market conditions and raw material costs, general guidance for 6-core armored fiber optic cables is: Per Meter: Approximately $1–$5 USD per meter for standard configurations. Per Foot: Roughly $0. 30–$1.

50 USD per foot, depending on fiber type and armor. Bulk Orders: Purchasing reels of 1 km or more can significantly reduce unit cost.

Swedish Manufacturers and Suppliers

Several Swedish companies specialize in high-quality fiber optic cables suitable for armored applications: Nexans Sweden: Offers robust cables for data, telecom, and industrial applications, including outdoor and direct burial options. Habia: Provides customized high-performance fiber optic solutions for demanding environments.

Tykoflex A

B: Specializes in microcables and modular splice boxes with corrosion-resistant materials.

Westermo and North

Lab Photonics: Supply industrial and advanced fiber optic products for mission-critical networks. Stokab: Focuses on neutral fiber infrastructure and dark fiber leasing in Stockholm.

Recommendations for Accurate Quotation

To obtain a precise price, suppliers typically require: Fiber specifications: Type, core count, and performance standards (e.g., ITU-T G. 652. D, UL ratings).

Armor and jacket details: Steel tape vs. wire armor, outdoor or indoor jacket. Installation method: Direct burial, aerial, or indoor cabling. Drum length and quantity: Total meters or reels required.

Delivery location: Shipping costs and local regulations. Providing these details ensures a reliable quotation and avoids underestimating costs or receiving incompatible products. In summary, Swedish armored fiber optic cable prices are highly variable, and the most accurate pricing comes from direct consultation with manufacturers or distributors, considering all technical and logistical parameters.
