BR

X Series by Gewiss The BRX perforated steel cable trays feature rounded edges, high load resistance, and easy installation. They are available in multiple heights (H35, H50, H80, H95) and finishes, including Z275 (Sendzimir type) and HP (Zn-Mg) for aggressive environments. The design facilitates quick cable sliding and safe handling, making it suitable for industrial and commercial installations in Slovenia.

2. Shielden SQJ-SCT-1A This U-shaped perforated cable tray is engineered for efficient cable management and optimal heat dissipation. It features U-shaped chamfered edges to protect cables, lightweight construction for easy on-site assembly, and multiple material and surface treatment options.

It complies with IEC61537 standards, ensuring reliability in demanding environments. 3. Local Slovenian Manufacturers Several Slovenian companies specialize in high-quality perforated cable trays made from galvanized steel, stainless steel, and fiberglass.

These suppliers emphasize durability, airflow optimization, and compliance with industry standards. They also provide installation support, system design assistance, and customization to meet specific project requirements, making them a strong choice for local projects.

Considerations for Selection

Material and Finish: Galvanized or stainless steel is preferred for corrosion resistance. Load Capacity: Ensure the tray can support the weight of your cables. Ease of Installation: Look for trays with external couplers and rounded edges for safety.

Compliance: Verify adherence to IEC or European standards for electrical installations. Local Support: Slovenian manufacturers can provide faster delivery, technical support, and customization options. For projects in Slovenia, BRX by Gewiss and local Slovenian suppliers are highly recommended for their combination of quality, durability, and local availability, while Shielden offers a reliable international option with advanced features for heat dissipation and cable protection.
